

Integrating with the Mission-Critical Systems When Enterprise Resource Planning is Introduced

Industry: Manufacturing

HULFT

DataSpider® Servista

Purpose of introducing HULFT products

To integrate with the mission-critical system as ERP (enterprise resource planning) is introduced, and to implement a customized report system in a short time and with minimal development costs.

Issues prior to introducing HULFT products

The company is in the process of introducing ERP for the human resources and accounting systems. However, the customization to close the gap between the ERP and the company's internal processes will be expensive and time-consuming.

Effect of introducing HULFT products

Compared to the initial estimate, the development time and expenses were greatly decreased. Now that the system is running, the company is also able to flexibly handle improvements and other changes to its reports.
